Research Internship Program

The Women's International League for Peace and Freedom (WILPF) is an international nongovernment organisation that aims to achieve a more just and equal world, free of war and violence, where everyone has the full benefit of human rights.

WILPF has a national and international reach, with offices in 37 countries and headquarters in Geneva and New York. WILPF has had consultative status with UNESCO since 1948 and consistently provides submissions to Australian and international government and non-governmental bodies.

WILPF is celebrating its centenary in 2015 and has introduced a new research internship opportunity.

Those participating in the program will:

- Research a topic chosen by the internship committee of the WILPF Board
- Meet timeframes and other requirements set down by the committee

WILPF Australia offers interns:

- Associate membership, including in the YWILPF network
- Opportunity to present their research to the Board
- In 2015, opportunity to present their research as a poster presentation to its centenary conference in Canberra on Friday 29 May
- Publication of their research on the WILPF Australia website

If you would like to participate in our internship program, please contact Erin-Claire Barrow at erinclaire.barrow@gmail.com.
